

I'm Alessandro,

I was born in Milan and raised traveling around the world, first with my family and then alone for work.

Growing up professionally in the world of tourism in London, and beyond, I had the privilege of living and working on all 5 continents, which allowed me to get to know new people and new cultures, opening my horizons to 360° .

My professional experiences have often led me to experience the heart of the kitchens of large international hotels in close contact with great chefs where, fortunately, in addition to enjoying excellent dishes in the best restaurants in the world, I have also learned the secrets and the art of the culinary profession.

From there my passion for cooking, good food and good wine was born.

Always curious and passionate about food, I have developed and perfected my creativity in the kitchen and when I cook for both friends and guests I always try to improve.

It's my way of living and enjoying life... I love to cook!

I'm not a Chef, I'm a simple cook like many others who enjoy themselves among pans, aprons, genuine ingredients and a glass of good wine...

I always love to amaze myself and my guests through the creativity and evolution of my cuisine.
